TRANSMITTAL LETTER

In the above-referenced patent application, a certified copy of the application was inadvertently obtained by a Patent Research Service on behalf of the undersigned counsel. The undersigned attorney intended to obtain a certified copy of a different application serial number, but the request to the Service for the certified copy inadvertently identified serial number 09/651,140 (the '140 application) instead. When the certified copy of the '140 application was received, the undersigned became aware of this error, but neither read nor reviewed the contents of the '140 application.
